

Public Information and Policy Research

ExxonMobil provides support to organizations that promote international relationships, institutions with strong research capabilities that contribute to informed policy decision-making, and organizations that assess public policy alternatives on issues of importance to the petroleum and petrochemical industries. In 2017, worldwide contributions for public information and policy research totaled almost $5.8 million, of which $5.7 million was within the United States.

We support organizations that foster international understanding and engagement, including the Council on Foreign Relations and the World Affairs Council. Our involvement with the Business Council for International Understanding, Corporate Council on Africa and other similar organizations facilitates cross-cultural advancements and progress.

We support organizations that provide and promote sound policies and cross-cultural engagement.
